GET THE BEST DEALS ON YOUR BILLS

A typical household should now pay an average of £2,500 a year on their energy bill until April 2023. This means that bills will be a lot higher this winter than they have been in previous years. Remember if you use more – you will pay more.

Speak to your supplier

If you're struggling to pay your gas, electricity or water bills, speak to your supplier to make sure you're getting the best deal. Many suppliers have hardship funds to help their customers who are in debt.

Energy saving tips

- You can save around £240 a year by turning your appliances off standby mode, turning your heating down by one degree (around 18°C is safest) and keeping your shower time to four minutes.
- Fabric draught excluders (from as little as £5) can help seal up any gaps around doors, windows or the floor to keep the heat in.
- Book a free appointment with a Green Doctor to find out how to make your home more sustainable and cheaper to run.

Places you can stay warm this winter

If you're worried about the rising cost of bills or struggling to heat your home, there are a number of local places offering a warm welcome as temperatures begin to drop, including your local library. Visit www.warmwelcome.uk to find out more.
