Nicky Chandarana

With a background as a qualified accountant, Nicky is today, a programme manager at NatWest helping the bank prevent fraud and scams leading a large transformation team compromising of project, data and technology leads.

Last year Nicky graduated with an Executive MBA via Quantic Business School & Technology, a university based in Washington DC disrupting the market providing education via an app and online over zoom.

Furthermore, Nicky has recently travelled to Copenhagen, Dubai and more recently Berlin attending in person conferences with his fellow classmates and alumni from all over the world.

Outside of work, Nicky is a husband and father of two sons. In his spare time, Nicky enjoys networking and bringing likeminded people together in a social setting as well as volunteering and helping support local communities.

I have joined the management committee with a wish to help build confidence for the future of the school, parents and students associated with Ashley College. It is my aspiration to help provide a calm, safe, nurturing environment with personalised learning opportunities to enable all students to develop resilience and achieve their potential.